

PRESS RELEASE

November 2008

Release: Immediate

Thriving IT company is beating the economic downturn

IT company VOXIT Ltd today recorded fantastic growth and company profits for its first year of trading, despite battling against the UK's unpredictable economy.

The Portsmouth based technology company, owned and operated by entrepreneur 'Scott Pinhorne', provides IT solutions and support services for clients such as leading Internet Service Provider, Redstation Internet Ltd and STR Group Ltd who are one of the South's largest recruitment agencies. Earlier this month VOXIT also won the contract to support Alton Brooke, an award winning textile company based in Chelsea, London.

Following a string of recent client wins, VOXIT last month secured significant cash investment from a private investor, allowing the company to expand and grow to achieve its full potential.

VOXIT's potential is already being realised through the appointment of 'Barry Gorman', who started with VOXIT on the 3rd November 2008 as Business Operations Manager. Barry joins from Fareham property broker Urban Investor and will be responsible for new business generation, helping to drive the company forward into 2009.

"This new appointment is an exciting milestone for the company and a real achievement for me personally" said Scott Pinhorne, Managing Director, VOXIT Ltd. "When I launched the company early last year just before the Northern Rock fiasco my main aim was business survival. One year on and the company has really gained momentum. VOXIT provides hard evidence and hopefully confidence to others that there are great business opportunities out there despite the economic downturn."

It was also announced last week that VOXIT would be taking over the web arm of Atnet who provide web design, domain and hosting services for businesses throughout the UK. This acquisition furthers strengthens the company's reputation as a fast-growing IT solutions and service provider.
